

UCPM – Preparedness and Prevention

Christian AAGAARD Unit for Prevention and Disaster Risk Management, DG ECHO

UCPM Prevention and Preparedness funding

Investing in prevention and preparedness

- It is essential in order to adapt to the current and future reality (e.g. long-term impact of climate change)
- Socio-economic impact of disasters (50 million people affected by natural hazards in the EU between 1980 – 2020, worth EUR 487 billion)
- Investing in disaster resilience will also contribute to socioeconomic growth

Future programmes - Disaster Resilience Grants

Technical Assistance for Disaster Risk Management

Knowledge for Action in Prevention and Preparedness (KAPP)

Reframing the programmes according to these principles:

- Achieve administrative simplification and increase efficiency for both DG ECHO and for the Member and Participating States
- Ensure the highest added value of the prevention and preparedness financing to the entire UCPM
- Develop a result-oriented monitoring of projects and reporting
- Strive for high quality of the projects financed and provide robust technical guidance to beneficiaries during implementation
